Abstract

This research paper is written on the topic of "Concept of Basic Structure of the Constitution: An Appraisal from the perspective of Bangladesh and India" 'is a fundamental principle whereby powers and responsibilities are divided among the legislative branch, executive branch, and judicial branch. The officials of each branch are selected by different procedures and serve different terms of office; each branch may choose to block action of the other branches through the system of checks and balances. The framers of the Constitution designed this system to ensure that no one branch would accumulate too much power and that issues of public policy and welfare would be given comprehensive consideration before any action was taken. In the ongoing writings, I would like to give an endeavor demonstrate the concept and application of this important doctrine in Bangladesh, India, Constitution. For the betterment of discussion, this research paper have been divided into several chapters which details of the caption.
